

Alex Williams

Deputy Director, Industrial Strategy Directorate, BEIS

Alex Williams is a Deputy Director in the Industrial Strategy Directorate at the Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy. Before this, he was Principal Private Secretary to Greg Clark in his roles as Secretary of State in both the Department for Communities and Local Government and BEIS.

A civil servant for 9 years, Alex has worked in a number of different departments including the Treasury and the Cabinet Office; and on policies as varied as reforming the financial regulatory system in the UK, Royal Financing and devolution to local areas in England.

Prior to joining the Civil Service Alex was an officer in the Royal Navy and, before that, he worked in a graduate role for Thomson Holidays. Alex was born in Winchester and is an Economics graduate of the University of Liverpool. Outside of work he lists Portsmouth Football Club, sailing, cricket, military history and good food among his interests.